Monthly Newsletter for our Australian Alumni Community

ISSUE 5 | JULY 2021

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Members & Partners,

As we charted our path in the new normal, we set out to build the new better for AAS as well as the strong community we stand for. We re-looked at how we can build a foundation that will help us stay ahead, stay relevant and impact the three pillars of AAS - Our Members, Our Partners, and Our World.

In the previous newsletters, we discussed our strategy to help and support our Our Members and Our Partners. Let us discuss more how we can make an impact on Our World. Building a sustainable organization is key to achieving this objective. As a not-for-profit organization, our sustainability goals are underpinned by broadly 2 aspects - Environmental and Social.

Environmental sustainability is one of the biggest challenges faced by our world today. It spans across many areas including deforestation, biodiversity loss, ocean pollution, global warming, and much more. We have a commitment to leave this place a better place for our future generations and all of us big or small, individuals or organizations have a role to play. Environmental sustainability is also a strategic priority for Our Partners, and we can help them achieve those goals through our initiatives and activities.

Social sustainability is about building healthy and liveable communities for our current and future generations. COVID-19 deepened the inequality that existed within our community and presses the need for our support in the community we live in. Let us work towards building an inclusive society built on social equity, celebrating diversity, improving quality of life, and building social cohesion.

Many of our members and partners highlighted their interest to play a part in these meaningful initiatives. We also welcome new partners who share similar interests to join us. Let us discuss how we can work together and support you to meet your sustainability objectives.

With these objectives in mind, we have built 2 Social Interest Groups to bring like-minded people together- Sustainability Interest Group and Volunteer Interest Group. Please join these groups and be part of the journey and participate in the upcoming activities that we have planned for you.

We have the strength, ability, and the reach to make a difference and at AAS we are committed to lead these changes by building industry partnerships and bringing together a diverse group of individuals and their expertise to help us achieve these goals.

Join us and let us make a difference in the world we live in.

Yours Sincerely,

Raj

AUSTRALIAN HIGH COMMISSION UPDATE

It's a tough time for many of us – both in Singapore and Australia. With the Delta variant, there are lockdowns and restrictions and our loved ones can feel far away.

We're happy that – even in the middle of the pandemic - the Australia-Singapore relationship is going from strength to strength. Prime Minister, The Hon Scott Morrison MP visited Singapore in June and our Trade, Tourism and Investment Minister, Dan Tehan MP followed earlier this month.

While brief, both visits underlined the immense value Australia places on our relationship with Singapore. This was evident in meetings between Prime Minister Morrison and Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong and meetings between Minister Tehan, his counterpart Minister Gan Kim Yong, and Singapore's ministers responsible for sustainability and the environment and communications.

Our Prime Ministers and Minister Tehan also discussed the issue of travel between Australia and Singapore. They agreed that open borders will be crucial to our post-pandemic recoveries, and both are committed to resume two-way travel, as soon as it is safe to do so. However, a travel bubble between our countries will ultimately be based on health considerations and a high rate of vaccination in Australia and Singapore. We know many of you would very much like to see Australia again.

Finally, thank you to so many of you , for getting onboard with High Commissioner Will Hodgman's #MakanOzStyle challenge recently and ordering some great Australian food and drinks to enjoy at home. The Aussie restaurants, chefs and grocers involved appreciate your support during this difficult time for their industry.

With Phase 2 (Heightened Alert) safe management measures in place once again from 22 July, please continue to support these businesses and products. Also, please check out our social accounts for our latest food challenge to promote delicious Australian avocados in partnership with Taste Australia: the #AussieAvoChallenge.

JCU in Singapore offers new postgraduate pathways in psychological science

James Cook University in Singapore's new postgraduate psychological science programs equips students with the knowledge and skills to apply psychological science in business environments.

As James Cook University in Singapore strives to expand learning opportunities and make learning more accessible for students, the University has announced two new postgraduate psychological science courses – the Graduate Certificate of Psychological Science and the Master of Psychological Science (Majoring in Business Psychology).

The two courses share a close connection. Successful completion of the Graduate Certificate of Psychological Science allows individuals from a non-psychology background to enrol in James Cook University's Master of Psychological Science \(Majoring in Business Psychology\). The programme, which can be completed in four months, also provides a postgraduate qualification in psychology for those who do not wish to commit to a longer programme.

Meanwhile, the Master of Psychological Science (Majoring in Business Psychology) is presently the only dedicated business psychology programme offered in Singapore. The programme, which can be completed within one year in a full-time capacity, is more well-rounded and adaptable compared to a Master's in Human Resource Management or other areas of psychology.

"If anybody asks if business psychology is the same as organizational psychology, you can say that it's very similar, but the emphasis in business psychology is a bit broader than organizational psychology," says Associate Professor Jonathan Ramsay, Academic Head of Social and Health Sciences at James Cook University in Singapore.

He adds, "It's still very much psychological science. That's to emphasize the fact that this is ultimately a scientific discipline. It's about using scientific methods and psychological theories, and using those things to help organizations and businesses work better – to get better results and have better outcomes for their employees, customers and stakeholders."

Graduates of the Master of Psychological Science (Majoring in Business Psychology) program will find themselves equipped with the skills to take on a wide variety of roles and business functions. These include talent management, employee engagement, leadership development, maintaining health and well-being at work, coaching, and more. Skills in these areas are especially relevant and crucial to current managers or people who aspire to move into a management position in the near future.

Find out more about our Graduate Certificate of Psychological Science and Master of Psychological Science \(Majoring in Business Psychology\).
